AGAIN THE "COMBINE."

The news published exclusively in THE EVENING WORLD last night that District Attorney FELLOWS had been notified by telegraph to St. Louis that Alderman COWLING had preferred charges of bribery against Alderman DOWLING, created a sensation in the city.

The Special Grand Jury sits just in time to investigate this matter. The attitude of a portion of the Board towards various matters that have come up before it is consistent only with the theory of a "strike."

If it is 1884 over again, let us hope that Justice will take off her leaden shoes and make the chase for the rascals more swift than it was for the old gang.

SOMEBODY TO BLAME.

The coroner's jury finds that somebody was to blame for the death of Lineman MURRAY—one of Mayor Hewitt's "gone coons."

We find the Brush Electric Illuminating Company responsible for the death of THOMAS MURRAY, it was its verdict.

This is business. The old "nobody-to-blame" formula of coroner's juries would have been shamefully out of place in this case.

The death-dealing wires must go under ground, or derelict officials ought to be put out of office.

A FIGHTING CHANCE.

Dr. PEPPER says that Gen. SHERIDAN has "a good fighting chance yet."

If this be so, "Gallant Phil" ought to win. He was never yet beaten in a fight, even when the odds were heavily against him.

The General's firm determination to get well is half the battle. Such clear grit and such a grip on life as he is displaying deserve to win.

"While there is life there is hope."

A HALF-DAY OFF.

The noon-closing on Saturdays is growing in favor. Some of the largest dry-goods stores have adopted it for June and the two following months. Others will close during July and August.

It is a sensible as well as a just custom, and will yet become general. The clerks and other employees will work all the better for a half-day's recreation each week. Purchasers will soon learn to do their buying on Saturday before-noon, if they find that they must.

This is the greatest present value of the Half-Holiday law: it sets the fashion, and gives the sanction of the State to workers' play spell.

There is a good deal of the boy left in the average man. Otherwise a great political convention would not "go wild" over a red bandanna handkerchief. But in politics, as in war, emblems are potent.

These glorious June days were made for weddings, and the happy brides who "named the day" for the first week in the month of roses made no mistake. Joy to all the happy couples!

The Little Giants of THE EVENING WORLD baseball nine will do their level best to "get away" from the Michigan boys on the Polo Grounds to-morrow. It will be a contest worth seeing.

Tammany Hall is burned, but the spirit of the Tammany braves is indestructible.

Labor Speaks for Itself. Thomas F. McClelland, of the International Boatmen's Union No. 19, New York, will write of the organization of boatmen in to-morrow's EVENING WORLD.

An Early June Marriage. Mr. Charles A. Follett, well known on Prospect Heights, Brooklyn, was married to Miss Mamie Travis Boyd, daughter of Alexander Boyd, on June 1, by the Rev. John F. Steen, Rector of Ascension Chapel, Forty-third street, this city.

See the Detroit Journal champion newboy nine play THE EVENING WORLD newboys to-morrow, at the Polo Grounds, at 3.30 P. M. Admission, 25 cents.

Fair Weather and Cool Winds. WASHINGTON, June 6.—Weather indications: For Connecticut and Eastern New York—Fresh to brisk easterly winds; stationary temperature; variable and fair weather, followed by colder westerly winds.

TALK ABOUT MEN.

Little Billy Newman and "Cy" Prele are a couple of hard workers connected with Niblo's.

Rondaman Hayes, of the Leonard street police station, always seems very much at home behind the coat.

Dennis Murphy, the carpet salesman, is a splendid jockey. The boys at the store say he is next to "Joe Emmet."

Gen. Franz Sigel is as faithful to his country in the capacity of Pension Agent as he was in fighting during the war.

Alva Brown, of Hill Brothers, can entertain a company with his sleight-of-hand. He is not going on the road, however.

Judge Wallace, of Wallace's Monthly, says he has tried all the different papers, but for advertising THE WORLD leads them all.

George M. Brockway, proprietor of the Gilesey Hotel, will assume the management of the Hotel Bristol, Lake Hopatcong, next week.

Hotel Proprietor McNeill's room next light upon him. Although he is over sixty he is straight as an arrow. He might be taken for a successful actor.

WORLDINGS.

Twenty-four young women hold the degree of L. L. B. from the University of Michigan.

There are said to be more than a hundred colored men in Washington who are worth $25,000 or over. Fred Douglass has a fortune of $50,000.

Mrs. Langtry has a very attractive farm in Lake County, Cal., near St. Helena, and it is stated by a San Francisco paper that she intends soon to build a fine residence and live there nine months out of the year.

William Bickford, a hale old resident of Pine Island, Minn., has been a Mason for sixty-four years. He has voted in seventeen Presidential elections, and each time he cast a straight Democratic ballot.

The oldest house in Indiana, the old Moore mansion, situated on the Utica pike, near Four Mile Springs, has recently been torn down. It was built in 1800, of stone and brick, and for many years past has had the reputation of being haunted.

James Caldwell, a florist of Montgomery, Ala., recently coughed up a spit from his right lung. He has suffered about twenty years from lung trouble. He now recalls that he swallowed the spit forty-seven years ago in Glasgow, Scotland, when but seven years old.

James G. Blaine's great-grandfather, Ephraim Blaine, was a man of large fortune and during the Revolution was Commissary-General of the Continental Army. At one time, it is said, he made an advance of $50,000 from his private fortune for the support of the army.

Miss Gussie Cottow, a ten-year-old Chicago girl, astonished a large audience a few nights ago by her wonderful performance on the piano. Among the difficult selections she rendered were Chopin's nocturne in E-flat major and Moscheles's "Charmes de Paris," which were given in faultless style. Her display of memorization was phenomenal.

Threatened with "a Living Tomb." Johanna and Thomas Keane were married in Ireland July 4, 1864. Mr. Keane is now suing for limited divorce on the ground of cruelty and abandonment. Yesterday application was made to Judge Andrews for a decree of divorce and for custody of the child.

Will the Woodhall Case Be Dismissed? In the suit of the heirs of John Gill to recover from Alice Woodhall the funds said to have been stolen from the old man and his estate, John T. Judge, Inspector Scotland Yard, was examined yesterday. When Alice Woodhall was arrested in England by Turnbull he succeeded in obtaining $5,000 worth of bonds from her bureau. These he brought over and put in in Jersey City. William F. Howe, attorney for Alice Woodhall, moved yesterday that the case be dismissed as she, as an extrajurisdiction person, could not be tried on a charge for which she was extradited—forgery. He also suggested that as United States Marshal McMahon was the only person present who could today the bonds taken from Miss Woodhall could be placed, they should be given to him. Judge O'Connor announced the Marshal to appear before him this morning.

The work, wages and prospects of the boatmen of New York will be discussed by Thomas F. McClelland, of the International Boatmen's Union, in THE EVENING WORLD to-morrow. "Labor speaks for itself" in this series.

Inspector Williams Looking for Burglars. There was considerable commotion and great excitement about 10 o'clock last night around Police Headquarters, caused by the ringing of the burglar alarm connecting the Treasurer's safe with the "telegraph office in the basement. Operator R. B. informed Inspector Williams, who bodily unlocked the doors of Commissioner McClelland's room, and found them in total darkness. The gas was lighted, and every book was scrutinized, but not a burglar could be seen. The alarm has on several occasions before gone off, but it never caused the sensation it did last night.

Jay Gould Will Come Home. Jay Gould leaves Colorado Springs for the East to-morrow or Friday. He will go to St. Louis and thence to Memphis on his way home.

MEN WHO HAVE RISEN.

AUGUST FLIEGE.

Mr. August Fliege is another example of those go-ahead foreigners who have emigrated to America, and after thoroughly assimilating the manners of the country, have quietly rolled up a comfortable fortune. One encouraging point in Mr. Fliege's success is that it has come from faithful attention to the duties of his business. Luck has not had anything to do with it, nor speculation. It has been the natural outcome of industry and ability, and success of this kind is the most encouraging because any man may hope to succeed in the same way who has a good understanding of what he is engaged in and the nerve to stick to it steadily. If a man hasn't these he has no right to success, and he is foolish if he expects it.

These remarks have been occasioned by the fact that Mr. Fliege, with the exception of certain changes of domicile, has been uninterruptedly engaged in his present profession of tailor from the time when he first learned it at fourteen years of age.

August Fliege was born in Hesse-Cassel in the year 1840. His father was a merchant tailor. August got the usual term of schooling of German boys followed by the usual term of apprenticeship at the trade of tailoring. For three years he remained with his father, familiarizing himself with the art of cutting and measuring and fitting.

The leaven of ambition, which is always at work in live boys, made him aspire to a larger field, and he went to Berlin. Two years were spent there and then a year at Hamburg.

His next move was to London at twenty years of age. As young Germans approach their majority it is not an uncommon thing for them to forsake the Fatherland and seek some foreign country. Description lies ahead of them if they remain, and seven years or more taken out of a young man's life, when at its very flower, for the purpose of ingesting a mucklet and going through the wearisome routine of military tactics, is a very discouraging prospect. A land of freedom and perfect equality, where everybody has a chance to win what is highest and best for himself, offers an alluring contrast to this sort of servitude, and they generally find that America presents them with this outlook.

Of course the emigration of these able-bodied young fellows is not assisted or fostered by the mother country. Their departure is generally a secret one. They smuggle themselves across the frontier, or escape in some disguise or other from Germany.

Young Fliege did not go to America at once, but spent about four years in London before he sailed for the New World. He found employment with the best tailors in London. But he had not yet found what fully satisfied him, and in 1864 he left London for America.

He landed in New York without a cent. So he started in with nothing but hope, health and a good knowledge of his business. He was not long in finding a position. Two years later he began business for himself. His first venture was in a small, unassuming fashion at 688 Broadway. He made two moves, each higher up the same busy thoroughfare, and has now been seven years in his present store at 760 Broadway.

His business is a prosperous, profitable one. His success and reputation as a cutter have come by themselves. Patrons saw the excellent fit he gave them, and his suits, and especially his trousers, have been the best advertisements for him. It is sufficient praise of Mr. Fliege's skill in adapting fabrics to the peculiar requirements of the masculine form that he has sometimes been called on, as it were, a suit made by Poole, of London, who is regarded as the greatest tailor in the world.

The swell young men of New York, to whom perfectly fitting trousers are a burning anxiety, and their most fervent desires for resplendence and absolute "fit" are satisfied by Mr. Fliege. He carries a large stock of the best material, but frequently patrons who have run across some pattern that suits them by the material and bring it to him to have it cut.

Eighteen dollars for a pair of breeches is a price that ought to guarantee a more than usual excellence. The mere cutting and making of a pair of trousers where the patron supplies the material is $8. Of course it is from the jeune doree that such prices can be expected. Not everybody can afford to cover his legs at a cost of two ten-dollar bills for the covering. But those to whom expense is not a consideration and who ask only for a perfect fit are well satisfied with Mr. Fliege's work.

He has made his position by his own unaided efforts and is entitled to all the results in the shape of prosperity which have come to him. Mr. Fliege married in this country and has become quite an American by his quarter of a century in the United States.

Italian Laborers Killed by a Train. A gang of seven Italian laborers were at work on the New York and Northern Railroad, at Moshon avenue, this morning, when a Yonkers Rapid Transit train dashed among them with terrible consequences.

Frank Paulonizing, Joseph Pures, Joseph Romano and Rosal Meritt had their thighs fractured. The injured men were taken to the Ninety-ninth Street Hospital and the killed to the Morgue. Engineer Greg, Higgins and Conductor George Edwards were in charge of the train, but were not injured.

PROF. VITRAIN'S NAME DRAGGED IN.

He Was Not the Prof. Muller Who Is Held on Two Charges of Larceny.

Prof. Edward Muller was again before Justice Ford at the Jefferson Market Court yesterday. His wife and her sister were in court, but they did not speak. A charge of forgery was made against him by August Marshall of a check for $68.00, and one of the larceny of $38 worth of jewelry was made by Mrs. Minnie G. Haves, a son of Dr. E. G. Haves, of Hicksville, L. I., also in court that his father had been swindled out of $30, and that other people in the same place had been defrauded. The following dispatches were received yesterday by Inspector Bryant:

CINCINNATI, June 5.—Called away unexpectedly, Dr. Muller is called please hold it till my return. "Will not be called on for protection."

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Read account of my arrest in New York. Am here, at Hotel School. Don't know any Muller.

N. A. Joly, Vice-President of the Bertha School of Language, on West Madison Square, accompanied by Baron Louis de L'Epine, called to see if the prisoner was Prof. Vitrain, and held an interview with Muller. Muller said he never respected himself to be Prof. Vitrain, nor did he ever sign that name to any dispatch; the detective found Prof. Vitrain's card in his pocket, but he never used the name. The gentlemen went away satisfied that he was not their friend. Prof. Muller was committed for trial on the two charges.

Mr. Joly said to a World reporter: "The person who made such an unwarranted use of Prof. Vitrain's name is no one that I have ever known before and never has had any connection with our school. This person is about twenty-five. I have seen him in the neighborhood of the school, and he is a man of the highest character. He was connected with our school in this city until last September, at which time he was dismissed for management of our Philadelphia branch. We will endeavor to find out the real name of the culprit and have him punished for his outrage."

SOLD OUT AND DEPARTED.

Mr. Pridgeon Quietly Disposes of a Flourishing Business and Leaves Angry Creditors.

William P. Pridgeon, who for the last seven years has kept a large restaurant combined with a bakery and delicatessen store at 1142 114th Third avenue, has sold out an apparently flourishing business, and departed for parts unknown, leaving behind him a band of unpaid creditors, which included the employees of his establishment.

Last Saturday Mr. Pridgeon visited Ullmann & Co., auctioneers, at 57 Walker street, and informed them that he desired to dispose of his store business, and that he would like to have the goods sold at once.

After an inspection the firm made an offer, which was accepted by Pridgeon, and the appearance dates from the receipt of the money.

The auction on Monday drew a big crowd, but instead of a sale being begun, when the angry crowd of creditors made their appearance. Two parties, involving legal aid, succeeded in getting partial satisfaction by the seizure of property, but the others are left in the lurch.

Pridgeon gave a check for $325 to the agents for his store to pay over due rent. It was dated August 1, and when an effort was made to draw on the departed man's bank account was found to have been withdrawn.

The Captain Defied the St. Johns Police. Dr. John N. F. June 5.—This morning Capt. Diggins, of the American banking school at St. Johns, who had been seized here for violation of the Hatt act, charged with buying more salt than was required and selling it to the French, ordered the St. Johns police to let him go. The police were made to have a tug like the vessel out of the harbor. Five policemen tried to arrest the crew, and the American Consul, Mr. Molloy, advised the Captain to submit, but he refused to do so and ran away from the harbor. A strong force of police then arrived and arrested the Captain and crew, who were brought before Judge Provost. Nothing important was elicited in the trial to-day. The principal witness is expected to-morrow.

Answers to Correspondents.

J. F. J.—The seating capacity of the Metropolitan Opera House is 4,000. It has two tiers of boxes and three balconies.

H. J. R.—I shall be twenty-one Nov. 14. Am I entitled to vote? Minors are not permitted to vote in any State in the Union.

J. C. C.—Is a person's own testimony sufficient to convict a criminal? It may be and it may not be. It is for the Court to decide whether the criminal or not. In every plea of guilty that is accepted by the Court, the criminal is convicted by the plea of guilty. Sometimes a Court will refuse to accept such a plea and will order a trial. A man who has never had but one wife may be guilty of bigamy, and a man who has married ten women may not be guilty of bigamy. Crimes are usually technical, depending upon circumstances and not upon results or actions.

NERVOUS WOMEN.

WHAT CAUSES THEIR WEAKNESS AND HOW IT MAY BE REMEDIED.

Home Sound and Valuable Advice to Women.

Women are great sufferers from nervousness, weakness, nervous prostration and exhaustion. Thousands of women drop and languish under household cares, family bereavement, responsibilities and work which never ends. Here lies the great strain upon the nervous system; here is the cause why so large a proportion of our women complain of being weak, nervous, tired and exhausted. They have little or no rest; their life is one constant round of work, duties here, duties there, duties without number. What wonder that such women go to bed at night fatigued and wake tired and unrefreshed in the morning? What wonder that they become worn out, so to speak, in nerve and vital power? Yet they keep about their work long after they realize that they ought to call themselves sick and remain in bed, and so they continue to "work upon their nerves" day after day.

Of how many thousands of women is the above a true and exact picture of daily life. They have come out of and exhausted their nerve force and power, and it follows, as surely as the day follows the night, that they must recover from some source a renewal of the nerve force and power, or prostration or death will follow.

Fortunately, and it would almost seem a dispensation of divine favor to overworked humanity, there is a medicine which exactly meets these requirements and which restores lost nerve force, rebuilds the shattered and overworked nervous system, and re-establishes health, strength, vigor and energy. By means of this wonderful remedy, Dr. Green's Nervous Nerve Tonic, the vigor and energy of the nerves can be readily built up, and in this manner work and continual work can be done without exhaustion or prostration. The remedy is purely vegetable
